

Postsocialist Land Relations

The Group has the mission to examine land reforms, land tenure, and land use in postsocialist countries of Central and Eastern Europe and East Asia. We conduct empirical research on the nature of land tenure and determinants of land use in diverse postsocialist contexts. We use this knowledge for advice on policy and institutions that facilitate sustainable rural livelihoods and resource use in the postsocialist world.

The Group was established as a research unit at Humboldt University Berlin with funding by the Emmy Noether-Program of Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft.
